

1. Dr Mayur Parihar is head of cytogenetic division and a Senior consultant in Cytogenetics and Laboratory Hematology at Tata Medical Center , Kolkata .
2. He completed his MD in Pathology in 2004 from Armed Forces Medical College, Pune in 2004.
3. He then trained and worked in oncopathology at the prestigious Tata Memorial Hospital, Mumbai till 2006.
4. Pursuing his interest in cancer genetics, he went on to do two year post doctoral fellowship in Clinical Cytogenetics at Christian Medical College, Vellore.
5. Awarded the Indian Council of Medical Research International Fellowship for young Scientists 2012-2013
6. Did his fellowship at Duke Institute of Genomic Sciences, Duke University, USA working on microarrays and Next Generation Sequencing.
7. Awarded grant by Department of Biotechnology (DBT) for his work on Acute Lymphoblastic Leukaemia
8. Has more than 20 national and international Publications in both solid and liquid tumor genomics, some in high impact journals like Cancer Discovery, Blood, Leukaemia.
9. Has written chapters in books including de Gruchy's Clinical Haematology in Medical Practice