SOCIAL ASPECT OF SUSTAINABILITY
TRAINING ON CURRICULUM, RESEARCH, AND EXTENSION ACTIVITIES

ABOUT THE PROGRAMME

Higher Education Institutions play a pivotal role in advancing social sustainability, ensuring that development is inclusive, equitable, ethical, and community-oriented. This Faculty Development Programme is designed to sensitize and empower faculty members to integrate the social pillar of sustainability into curriculum design, research practices, and extension activities, in alignment with Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and national accreditation frameworks.

This programme emphasizes equity, inclusion, gender justice, human development, and social well-being, enabling institutions to translate sustainability commitments into measurable academic and social impact.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

By the end of this training, participants will be able to:

- Explain the concept of social sustainability and its relevance in higher education.
- Identify key social dimensions such as equity, inclusion, gender justice, human development, and social well-being.
- Integrate social sustainability principles into curriculum design, teaching-learning methods, and assessment.
- Apply social sustainability frameworks in research ethics, innovation, and social impact evaluation.
- Design and implement extension and community engagement activities promoting inclusion and equity.
- Develop institution-level action plans for embedding social sustainability across teaching, research, and outreach.

Introduction

The University recognizes sustainability as a core institutional value encompassing social responsibility, equity, and inclusive development. In alignment with the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and the QS Sustainability framework, focused initiatives were undertaken to strengthen social sustainability across teaching, research, and extension activities.

Objectives

By the end of the training programme, participants were expected to:

- Explain the concept of social sustainability and its relevance to higher education, research, and community engagement.
- Identify key social dimensions of sustainability, including equity, inclusion, gender justice, human development, and social well-being.
- Integrate social sustainability principles into curriculum design, teaching-learning methodologies, and assessment practices.
- Apply social sustainability frameworks in research, innovation, and social impact evaluation.

- Design and implement extension and community engagement activities that promote inclusion and social equity.
- Develop institution-level and departmental action plans for embedding social sustainability across teaching, research, and outreach activities.

Day-wise Programme Implementation

Day 1: The programme commenced with an introduction to the concept of social sustainability and its linkage with the Sustainable Development Goals. The session focused on the conceptual foundations of social sustainability, the social pillar of sustainable development, and its relevance to higher education institutions. Discussions highlighted the role of universities in promoting inclusive growth, social responsibility, and community-oriented development through education, research, and outreach.

Day 2: The second session addressed key social dimensions of sustainability, including equity, inclusion, human development, gender equality, and reduced inequalities. Emphasis was placed on inclusive education practices, social justice, diversity, and institutional responsibility in addressing systemic inequalities. Participants explored approaches to fostering equitable learning environments and promoting social well-being.

Day 3: The third session focused on integrating social sustainability into curriculum design and delivery. Outcome-based education and experiential learning approaches were discussed, along with curriculum mapping, pedagogy, and assessment strategies. Participants examined ways to embed social sustainability themes into course outcomes, teaching-learning processes, and evaluation frameworks.

Day 4: The fourth session explored the application of social sustainability principles in research and innovation. Key themes included research ethics, social impact assessment, interdisciplinary research, and community relevance. The session emphasized responsible research practices and the importance of aligning research initiatives with societal needs.

Day 5: The fifth session focused on extension activities, community engagement, and service learning. Discussions covered outreach models, participatory approaches, and the role of higher education institutions in addressing community challenges. Participants were encouraged to design extension activities that promote inclusion, social equity, and mutual learning between the institution and society.

Day 6: The concluding session emphasized institutional strategies, best practices, and action planning for embedding social sustainability across teaching, research, and extension activities. Reflection on learning outcomes, implementation strategies, documentation requirements, and future directions formed the core focus of the session.

Institutional Approach

A structured, capacity-building approach was adopted, centered on Faculty & Professional Staff Members sensitization, curriculum integration, ethical research practices, community engagement, and institutional documentation.

Description of the Initiative

A Training Programme on “Social Aspect of Sustainability: Training on Curriculum, Research, and Extension Activities” was conducted in multiple phases and batches to ensure wide Faculty & Professional Staff Members participation. The programme covered social sustainability frameworks, inclusive curriculum design, research ethics and social impact, extension activities, and institutional best practices.

Resource Persons and Training Methodology

The programme was delivered by experienced faculty members of the Learning and Development Centre & Internal Quality Assurance cell, along with members and advisors of the SDG Committee. The resource persons brought interdisciplinary expertise and provided valuable insights into sustainability concepts, policy frameworks, and real-world environmental challenges.

The training methodology combined expert lectures, interactive discussions, case studies, and contextual examples. Students were encouraged to actively participate, reflect on environmental issues, and critically analyze sustainability practices. The sessions also motivated students to conceptualize simple environmental action plans aligned with SDGs, fostering a solution-oriented mindset.

Outcomes and Feedback

Participants reported improved clarity on the concept and relevance of social sustainability in higher education. Faculty & Professional Staff Members indicated greater confidence in integrating equity, inclusion, and social responsibility into teaching, assessment, research, and outreach activities. The programme was perceived as practically relevant, particularly in supporting ethical research practices, inclusive extension activities, and quality documentation for QS Sustainability and NAAC requirements. Suggestions highlighted the value of follow-up implementation-focused workshops.

Conclusion

The University's social sustainability initiative reflects a systematic and forward-looking approach to embedding inclusive and ethical practices within higher education. Through structured Faculty & Professional Staff Members development training and institutional planning, the initiative strengthens academic quality, societal engagement, and global sustainability readiness.
